Understanding Medications

RxCheckup Pays for Consultations With Network Pharmacists

We believe that understanding medications can benefit overall health and reduce medical costs. That's why we pay – in full – for our members to learn more about their drugs and receive help with their medication questions.

The program, called RxCheckup, directs members to local network pharmacists for assistance. When a local pharmacist is not available, a member is referred for a phone consultation.

During confidential one-on-one consultations, an RxCheckup pharmacist:

- Reviews all medications, including over-the-counter medications and herbal and nutritional supplements.
- Provides advice to avoid possible problems, such as adverse effects and drug interactions.
- Monitors conditions affected by medications, such as blood pressure, cholesterol and blood sugars.
- Works with physicians to resolve identified concerns or make cost-reduction recommendations.

Because CoOpportunity Health pays for the services in full, there's nothing for members to pay following the visit.
